CORAM : MR.JUSTICE H.K.RATHOD

Date of decision: 13/06/2003

ORAL JUDGEMENT

Heard the ld. Advocate Ms. Banna Datta for the petitioner and Mr. KP Raval ld. AGP for the respondents. Rule has been issued by this court in the present petition on 20.3.2003 and made it returnable after a period of six weeks.

In the present petition, the petitioner has challenged the detention order dated 2.12.2002 and executed on 22.1.2003 passed by the District Magistrate, Rajkot under sec. 3(1) of the Gujarat Prevention of Anti Social Activities Act, 1985. The detenu has been dtained in District Jail, Baroda.

Considering the grounds of detention, in all, six offences has been registered against the present petitioner under the provisions of Bombay Prohibition Act. No statements of secret witness has been recorded by the Sponsoring Authority against the present petitioner. The order of detention has been passed by the detaining authority on the basis of only registered offences. The detention order has been passed considering the petitioner as a bootlegger under sec. 2(b) of the PASA Act. The affidavit-in-reply has been filed by the State Government which is taken on record and the copies thereof is served to the petitioner. There is no affidavit in reply filed by the detaining authority.

Ld. advocate Ms. Datta appearing on behalf of the petitioner has challenged the detention order on various grounds but according to her, one ground is enough to vitiate the order of detention. Therefore, she submitted that in registered offences, nowhere any material has been pointed out by the detaining authority about the activities of petitioner acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. No reasonings has been given by the detaining authority in the grounds of detention. All are an individual offences relates to individuals only and because of that offences maintenance of public order has not been disturbed and for that there is no any material considered by the detaining authority to arrive a conclusion about the subjective satisfaction that because of the activities carried out by the petitioner which has disturbed the public order. Ms. Datta submitted that the law and order and public order are altogether a different things. In the facts of the case, she submitted that the detaining authority is not able to justify the order of detention because of the activities carried out by the petitioner is disturbing the public order and, therefore, she submitted that the order of detention is vitiates.

Ld. AGP Mr. KP Raval submitted that the registered offence which are in number of six against the petitioner having a cumulative effect on the society at large. He submitted that because of selling of the liquor by the petitioner, it adversely affect the health of the public. He also submitted that ultimately the liquor which has been sold by the petitioner affects the public at large and it amounts to adversely affect on the maintenance of public order. Therefore, he submitted that the contention which has beenraised by ld. Advocate Ms. Datta cannot be accepted relying upon para-4 and 5 of the grounds of detention. He also relied upon the reasonings given by the detaining authority in para-4 that his activities has been covered the entire Upleta Taluka and nearby area as a bootlegger and, therefore, the naturally the persons those who are residing at Upleta and nearby area are adversely affect of the activities carried outby the petitioner and,therefore, he submitted that because of his activities in various area adversely affect and, therefore, the detaining authority has rightly come to the subjective satisfaction about the adverse affect on the maintenance of the public order. He also submitted that the detaining authority has applied the mind on the basis of the material placed before it by the Sponsoring Authority and, therefore, he submitted that the order of detention has been rightly passed by the detaining authority which is legal and valid and no interference is required by this court.

I have considered the submissions made by both the learned advocates. The question is that whether registered offence against the petitioner by which really the maintenance of public order has been disturbed or not. There is a vast difference between law and order as well as public order. It is the duty of the detaining authority to satisfy the conscious of the court that because of the activities carried out by the petitioner which adversely affect the maintenance of public order. I have perused the entire grounds of detention as well as record produced by the petitioner. According to my opinion, in entire reasoning of the grounds of detention, there is no such averments or reasons given by the detaining authority that because of the activities carried out by the petitioner adversely affect the maintenance of public order, even this fact is not disclosed by the secret witnesses in their statement. Therefore, considering this factual aspect when no reason given by the detaining authority that because of the activities of the petitioner the maintenance of public order is disturbed and, there is no such narration in the statement of secret witnesses. The law on this point is very settled by the Apex Court in the case of Mustakmiya

Jabbarmiya Shaikh vs. M.M. Mehta, Commissioner of Police and Ors., reported in JT 1995(4) SC 215, wherein it has been observed as under:

> "In order to bring the activities of a person within the expression of "acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order", the fall out and the extent and reach of the alleged activities must be of such a nature that they travel beyond the capacity of the ordinary law to deal with him or to prevent his subversive activities affecting the community at large or a large section of society. It is the degree of disturbance and its impact upon the even tempo of life of the society or the people of a locality which determines whether the disturbance caused by such activity amounts only to be a breach of "law and order" or it amounts to breach of "public order"."

The Division Bench of this Court has also considered the case of Mustakmiya Jabbarmiya Shaikh vs. M.M. Mehta, Commissioner of Police & Ors., 1995(2) GLR 1268(SC) in the case of Ashokbhai Jivraj @ Jivabhai Solanki vs. Police Commissioner, Surat & Ors., reported in 2000(1) GLR P. 816. The relevant observation made by the Division Bench of this Court in para-21 as under:

> "So far as the cases against the detenu are concerned, they have already been registered. They were against persons mentioned therein which is stated in the grounds of detention by the detaining authority. Regarding two statements, having taken into account the law laid down by the Supreme Court in Ram Manohar Lohia vs. State of Bihar, AIR 1966 SC 740 and reiterated from time to time including the decisions referred to by us hereinabove, the case falls under the maintenance of "Law and Order" and not "Public Order". The subjective satisfaction arrived at by the detaining authority, therefore, cannot be said to be legal, valid and in accordance with law. Since in the facts and circumstances, an order of detention could have been passed by the detaining authority for maintenance of "Public Order", the order deserves to be quashed and is hereby set aside. The detenu is ordered to be set at liberty fothwith unless required in any other case. Appeal is accordingly allowed. No order as to costs."

Applying this ratio laid down by the Apex Court and considering the factual aspects of the present matter, when there is no reasoning given by the detaining authority about the adverse effect on the maintenance of public order, and in absence of this material, the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority is without any base and, therefore, according to my opinion, this ground is enough to vitiate the order of detention because it amounts to non-application of mind on the part of the detaining authority for coming to the subjective satisfaction about the adverse effect of maintenance of public order, therefore, the detention order is required to be quashed and set aside.

In the result, this petition is allowed. The impugned order of detention dated 2.12.2002 is quashed and set aside. The petitioner-detenu - Ajitsinh Jorubha Jadeja who is detained in District Jail, Vadodara is hereby ordered to be released forthwith, if he is not required to be detained in any other case. Rule is made absolute with no order as to costs. DS Permitted.
